

OUR MISSION

The stated purposes and goals of the Graphic Communications Education Association are to accomplish the following:

- Support and further professional ideals of the printing, publishing, multimedia and related educational fields.
- Work in conjunction with international, national, regional, state and local educational and industrial agencies, organizations and associations, and sponsor meetings in conjunction with conferences of various groups
- Promote Graphic Communications Week during the week of Benjamin Franklin's birthday as a means of relating graphic communications education and the industry to the life of the community and the schools.
- Arrange an annual GCEA summer conference as a means of in-service education for members. First time attendees are eligible to apply for the Paul D. Von Holtz Conference Incentive Award.
- Stimulate research and dissemination of information of professional and technical interest to members.
- Assist in sponsoring the Gutenberg Awards competition and the Boy Scout/Girl Scout Merit Badge for printing.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

“ There is no more pressing issue facing the industry today than finding and educating a skilled workforce to design and operate the technology that will provide a strong future for graphic communications. Because it provides the support for teachers who are on the front lines of this critical effort, GCEA is one of the industry's most important organizations and is well worth the sustaining membership of NPES and our member companies. ”

Regis J. Delmongtagne, President

NPES, The Association for Suppliers of Printing, Publishing and Converting Technologies

“ As Chairman of PGSF, (Print & Graphic Scholarship Foundation) I know the large number of students actively seeking a career in the Graphic Arts. These are the lifeblood of our business for the future. As an industry, we owe it to ourselves to support them and the institutions and educators who will shape them for the future. The GCEA is an excellent way to do this. ”
